

Having fun with maths

Activities and games for developing maths language and skills by Dave Tout

The games and activities in this book focus on the development of fundamental maths skills through co-operative group work and the use of hands-on materials, as well as on enjoyment and having fun in order to build confidence and overcome maths anxiety.

The photocopiable activities are designed to encourage students to work together and use and talk about mathematics and its language and share their understandings and knowledge. The activities are suitable for a wide range of mathematics and numeracy students, especially for the middle years, year 11 students studying practical mathematics subjects, and adult numeracy students.

There are four sections: co-operative logic problems, dice games, calculator games and word games. Skill areas covered include: numbers and calculations, shape, location and direction and introductory algebra.

The materials are based on many years of experience working with teachers and students from both the school and adult education sectors. The approaches and activities developed in this book have been shown to work successfully with a wide range of students.

Football, meat pies, kangaroos and Toyotas: Book 1

Social Change and the Australian People

A STUDY BOOK FOR LITERACY AND NUMERACY

Social Change and the Australian People is the first of a series of books, Football, meat pies, kangaroos and Toyotas, that looks at changes in Australia in the last 50 years.

This book looks at the Australian population, how it has changed and some of the social changes this has caused. Topics covered are the increase in Australia's population, migration, the ageing population and population density.

In each book there is:

- information about the topic
- information about reading, writing and numeracy skills
- integrated literacy and numeracy exercises and worksheets.

The information and exercises are suitable for use at levels I & II of the Certificates in General Education for Adults, or levels 2, 3 and 4 of the National Reporting System. Also suitable for VCAL Intermediate & Senior.
